

FLOWER WEEK BEGINS MONDAY

100,000 Blossoms Will Be Given Churches, Hospitals and Schools.

"Say it with Flowers" week begins in Washington tomorrow, according to the program outlined by the floral committee, but in actuality the annual event held by the local growers has its inception today when every Washington church congregation and every Washington hospital will have a floral piece as a gift from the profession which adds more than any other one, perhaps, to the business of making this a more beautiful Washington. The "Say it with Flowers" week is a part of a nation-wide campaign on the part of the florists of America to familiarize the various communities in the meaning of flowers, their culture and the message which gifts of flowers from one loved one to another carries.

Basket to Red Cross.

Not overlooking an opportunity to spread a message of happiness, the floral committee sends a huge basket of chrysanthemums today to the Liberty Hut to express their undivided support in the Red Cross Thanksgiving Victory Roll Call which will be opened at 4 o'clock by General Pershing. Three thousand workers who are to canvass Washington in the coming days for the Red Cross will be encouraged in their work by a few remarks from a member of the floral committee, and a huge offering from the flower beds of Washington. "Say it with Flowers" is the only inscription which the basket of blossoms will carry, thus signifying a message from the hearts of a nation of flower growers.

During the Washington "Say it with Flowers" week more than 100,000 blossoms will be distributed among the city's hospitals, churches and institutions of learning, and the school children in both the high schools and graded schools have been offered gold prizes for writing the best essays on the theme of "Say it with Flowers." Householders who give the effort of the artists here to have the message of "Say it with Flowers" caught up on every tongue during the week, during which special attention to flowers will be made, every flower establishment in the city will have its doors open during the evenings to entertain visitors who go to see the individual displays, which system was decided upon rather than a central flower show, as used to be the custom. The florists wish it understood that the purpose of the flower week is not to encourage commercialism, their calling, but rather to engender in the public a closer, more intimate knowledge of flowers and the real part they play in making for a happier, more cheerful world.

So every pupil will today have a token from the local hot-houses and gardens with a message of cheer from the florists, as will the hospitals located in all sections of the city. Last Tuesday 5,000 blossoms were sent to the Walter Reed Hospital, as a gift from the Washington florists, and the effect the flowers had on the patients was so encouraging to the commanding officer that he has suggested to the floral committee that a similar offering be sent to the civilian institutions.

Col. Stephen M. Foote To Be Buried Monday

The funeral services of Col. Stephen M. Foote, U. S. A., who died October 25, 1919, will be held at the chapel at 1001 Myer (tomorrow) at 10:30 a. m. The body will be interred at Arlington Cemetery.

Dickens' Church Gets $15,000 War Memorial

London, Nov. 1.—The Church of the Holy Trinity, in the Strand, is to have a $15,000 war memorial. In this churchyard wall is still a part of the wall of old Marshalsea prison, in which Dickens' father, John, was born and in this church she was baptized and married. Dickens had a room near by.

Prof. Cain, America's foremost dancing master, says that recreation is as essential as food in maintaining the nation's health and prosperity. Make dancing your recreation and you will find it a real pleasure and health restoring pastime. Prof. Cain is sole owner of the Rightway Academy, Washington's most beautiful 100,000 students, has given 50,000 private lessons, and can teach you in a few lessons if you can be taught. He is assisted by Miss Fitzhugh, Mrs. H. L. Holt and five other efficient instructors teaching exclusively at the
